

Long Island Restaurant Week: 15 recommendations

Updated May 1, 2015 6:30 PM

By PETER M. GIANOTTI peter.gianotti@newsday.com

Popping up like a daffodil, Long Island's spring restaurant week runs through May 3, with the exception of Saturday, May 2, when fixed-price dining will not be offered after 7 p.m.

The dining rooms taking part include more than a few where it requires wizardry to keep the tab under $50 per person. But more than 120 restaurants in Nassau and Suffolk will be offering three-course, fixed-price dinners for $27.95, excluding tax, tips and beverages.

So, go bargain hunting, visiting a restaurant that ordinarily might stretch your budget like hand-pulled mozzarella. Here are 15 recommendations where you'll enjoy the food as much as the special price. Our only advice? Reserve early.

Noah's

(Credit: Rande Daddona)

Noah's, Greenport: Modern and traditional, sharp and subtle, chef Noah Schwartz's North Fork seafooder has a sense of place and of style. On Schwartz's special menu: local potato leek soup, seafood fritters, spring carrot risotto, espresso-rubbed grilled sirloin flap steak and flourless chocolate cake.